

VFW Names New Assistant Adjutant General

Jerry Newberry to coordinate the implementation of all VFW missions

Sep 19, 2012

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — America's largest organization of combat veterans has appointed a Vietnam War veteran Assistant Adjutant General for the 1.4 million-member Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States.

Jerry Newberry was installed as VFW Assistant Adjutant General on Sept. 19 in Kansas City. As the Chief of Staff for the Adjutant General of the organization, Newberry will coordinate the implementation of all VFW missions and programs within VFW National Headquarters in Kansas City.

"I am thrilled for the VFW and for Jerry. He has committed his life to veterans' well-being, and I know he will do all he can to help make sure the VFW remains the top veterans' service organization in the nation," says VFW Commander-in-Chief John Hamilton.

Prior to accepting the position, Newberry had served as Director of Communications and Public Affairs since 2001. He oversaw a national public affairs program designed to promote, influence and improve understanding by the public, the membership and other interested parties of VFW principles, goals and achievements. He directed a broad field of communications activities including web page content and social media and assisted VFW staff, State Departments and VFW leadership in all matters of communications. As host and co-producer of VFW's weekly radio show, he embedded with troops in Iraq and Afghanistan.

Newberry earned his VFW eligibility for service with the U.S. Army in Vietnam.
