

VFW Joins Coalition Call to End Government Shutdown

Oct 14, 2013

The Veterans of Foreign Wars of United States will be calling for an end to the government shutdown alongside other veteran and military service organizations at a 10 a.m. press conference, Tuesday, at the National World War II Memorial.

“The longer the shutdown the more severe the fallout, to now include the impending threat of no disability or survivor benefits checks to millions of disabled veterans and widows at the end of the month,” said VFW National Commander William A. Thien, a Vietnam veteran from Georgetown, Ind. “The failure of Congress and the White House to engage in good-faith bargaining to reopen the government, pay down our debt, and reduce federal spending will financially devastate those who live paycheck to paycheck, and it’s all because of failed elected leadership in Washington who would rather tell you who’s to blame than fix the problem.”

Speaking alongside the VFW at the Tuesday press conference will be other representatives from The Military Coalition, plus the American Legion and Disabled American Veterans. The Military Coalition is a group of 33 veteran, military, and uniformed services organizations of more than 5.5 million members who help to create and enhance legislation that benefits America’s veterans, service members and families, as well as to defeat those proposals that harm veteran and military members and families.
