

POW/MIA Recognition Day 2018

Let us remember those who put country before self,
but have yet to return home from their wars

Sep 20, 2018

The third Friday of every September is set aside as National POW/MIA Recognition Day. Let us remember those who put country before self, but have yet to return home from their wars.

Let us remember their families, who continue to burn the candle of hope. And let us continue to tell the story that without the service and sacrifice of American servicemen and women, there would not be a United States of America.
