“We appreciate the strong partnership we’ve had with Sport Clips and the VFW since 2012,” Darlington Raceway President Kerry Tharp said. “They’ve seen value in their sponsorship of our NASCAR XFINITY Series race and have used it as a platform to support military veterans and their families for many years. We’re pleased to be able to team up with them again to support our military heroes and extend our relationship for another four years. It’s a great fit for our Labor Day throwback weekend.”

Sport Clips and the VFW are proud supporters of Darlington’s throwback campaign, having run special paint schemes in the Monster Energy NASCAR Cup Series and NASCAR XFINITY Series races since the program began in 2015. Last year's MENCS scheme on Denny Hamlin's No. 11 Sport Clips Toyota car for Joe Gibbs Racing featured a tribute to NASCAR Hall of Fame member Darrell Waltrip.

The 2017 Sport Clips Haircuts VFW 200 race will also feature special retro-style designed tickets for the first time. Similar to the special Bojangles' Southern 500 tickets produced the past two years, the XFINITY Series ticket will tie the past and present of the sport together by recognizing 1987 race winner Dale Earnhardt Sr., along with last year's victor Elliott Sadler.

Sport Clips and the VFW will continue to use their NASCAR entitlement partnership to raise awareness about the struggles many military families are facing and the VFW's mission to support active-duty military, veterans and their families.

"As a South Carolina native, the Sport Clips partnership with Darlington Raceway is extra special to me, but even more important is our support of the VFW through this race sponsorship," Gordon Logan, founder and CEO of Sport Clips and Sumter, S.C. native said. "We are happy to extend our partnership with Darlington and look forward to celebrating military families while enjoying a weekend of great NASCAR racing in September."

As part of this year's partnership, Darlington Raceway is giving fans the opportunity to donate to Sport Clips' Help A Hero campaign as part of their ticket purchase for the Sport Clips Haircuts VFW 200 race. For 10 years, Sport Clips has been a proud sponsor of the VFW, starting with support of Operation Uplink in 2007, which provided phone calls home for service members stationed overseas. In 2013, the VFW "Sport Clips Help A Hero Scholarship" program was launched, which provides educational scholarships up to $5,000 to veterans and active duty service members.

To date more than 700 scholarships have been awarded and Sport Clips has provided more than $3 million in scholarships for a total of nearly $5 million donated to the VFW over the last decade. The company's most recent donation was a record-breaking $1 million presented to the VFW at their national headquarters in December.

Sport Clips is also a partner of Joe Gibbs Racing and Furniture Row Racing and will sponsor a total of seven races during the 2017 NASCAR season, including both the Monster Energy NASCAR Cup and XFINITY Series races at Darlington with Denny Hamlin.
